Aetna Life Insurance Company will pay more than $1 million in civil penalties and restitution after Attorney General Martha Coakley filed a complaint alleging the company deceptively marketed its coverage to Bay State college students. Coakley's office announced the agreement yesterday and said that Aetna falsely marketed the scope of the coverage it offered to students. METRO

Today's local tweet

"It's amazing how a stranger with a positive attitude can brighten your day. Thanks, @mbta driver!"

A token of T affection

If you got 'em, use 'em or lose 'em ... or keep 'em

"I liked the tokens, but a Charlie Card is much more convenient."
T RIDER RON NEWMAN

It's been five years since strap hangers had to fish around in their pockets for tokens to board the T, and while tokens haven't been accepted at fare gates since then, customers have been able to transfer the $1.25 value of a token to a Charlie Card at fare vending machines.

Riders should start digging through their drawers, because that is about to change.

Customers have until Saturday to turn in their tokens at the majority of vending machines, although they will be able to redeem them at a few select locations until July 20.

"I have no problem with them not accepting them because it's been more than five years since they were sold," said T rider Ron Newman. "It would've been fine with me if they had stopped accepting them two or three years ago, but I don't think that they did this in a very good way; they didn't publicize it."

Newman has hung onto three tokens with the intention of keeping one as a souvenir and feeding the other two to a vending machine, but like many riders this week, Newman said he was disappointed when they were rejected from all the machines at Davis Square.

T spokesman Joe Pesaturo said that in order to have the hundreds of vending machines ready for the new fare structure on Sunday, technicians have already started making modifications to many of the machines, so some of them no longer accept tokens.

"You may still bring your tokens to the windows at the customer service center at Downtown Crossing through July 20. Also through July 20, we will continue to accept tokens via fare vending machines at the following locations: Downtown Crossing, Harvard Square, Riverside, Ruggles, Quincy Center, and Government Center Stations," Pesaturo said.

For sentimental riders, other options are to hang onto them as a way to remember a simpler — and cheaper — time, sell them, or get crafty.

With word spreading that the tokens will no longer be worth $1.25 come Sunday, collectors are hanging onto them in the hopes to make a little more money.

"I'll probably give or sell them to people who can make useful objects such as earrings or cuff links from them," Newman said.

On Newman's Live Journal page, people commented that they are interested in buying the soon-to-be rare tokens.

Brass tacks

- The last brass token on the MBTA was sold at 10:23 a.m. Dec. 6, 2006, at Government Center station
- About 12,479 tokens were redeemed in fare vending machines this year
- The T currently has close to 3.4 million tokens in its possession
- The tokens that are now in the MBTA's possession will be sold to the highest bidder for scrap
- The majority of the tokens are 70 percent brass and 30 percent zinc.

Carson Beach in Southie gets four stars for water

SOUTH BOSTON. Carson Beach in South Boston received a favorable rating in a new analysis on beach water quality.

The Natural Resources Defense Council gave Carson Beach four out of five stars.

The report, released yesterday, said the beach had less than 5 percent of its water samples exceeding national limits in 2011, that officials post advisories online and that water quality is monitored more than once a week.

Massachusetts placed 12th in beach water quality out of 30 states reviewed in the report.

One help has been the institution of a no-discharge zone established around Cape Cod last year. METRO

Suffolk Downs talks casino resort jobs

BOSTON. Suffolk Downs released details yesterday on jobs that would be created if plans for a Caesars-branded casino resort come to fruition.

Developers said roughly 4,000 jobs would be created in 39 categories, such as chambermaids, security guards, chefs, software engineers, card dealers and more, with an average salary of $42,000.

"The project will provide employment opportunities across a wide spectrum, from white-collar professional to blue collar and service sector, in an area of communities most in need of these jobs," said Rich Rogers, executive secretary of the Greater Boston Labor Council.

Some in BU hazing case admit guilt

Two Boston University students involved in a hazing incident earlier this year in the basement of an Allston home admitted responsibility during a hearing yesterday.

Robert Rappa and Jonathan Katz, both 22 and of Brookline, admitted to their charges during a hearing in Brighton District Court, according to the Suffolk district attorney's office. Rappa was charged with hazing and failure to report hazing. He was ordered to pay $400 and to complete 40 hours of community service. He directed the pledges to the Ashford Street home.

Katz, who was able to prove he was not at the house when the hazing occurred, was ordered to pay $200 in court costs for failure to report hazing.

Jesse Kay, 20, of Allston, was also arraigned yesterday. He pleaded not guilty to hazing, failure to report hazing and five counts of assault and battery. He was released on his own recognizance and is due back in court Aug. 20.

Spencer Davidson, 21, of Allston, also pleaded not guilty to the same charges during a hearing last week and is due back in court at a later date.

Kyle Shevrin, 21, of Brookline was scheduled to be arraigned yesterday, but did not appear in court. He did notify officials that he was out of state, but a judge issued a default warrant for him. The judge did put the warrant on hold until Aug. 20, Shevrin's new arraignment date.

Michael Sanieoff, 22, who lived at the Allston home, previously pleaded not guilty to keeping a disorderly house and is due back in court next week.

What happened?

Police responded to the Ashford Street home just after midnight on April 9.

- In the basement of the home officers found five Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity pledges who were duct taped together and were ordered to disrobe.
- The pledges also had hot chili sauce poured on them, causing welts to appear on their skin, authorities said.

T to seek corporate sponsors

BOSTON. In the hope of bringing in about $10.6 million each year, the T is moving ahead with plans to offer corporate naming rights for six of its busiest subway stations.

Park Street, Downtown Crossing, South Station, Back Bay, North Station and the Airport stops will be up for grabs and, if sponsored, could get facelifts.

"Corporate sponsors are going to expect that the stations to which they've placed their name are going to be better maintained so we believe this is an opportunity to upgrade some of the maintenance in some of these key stations," said Mark Boyle, the MBTA's assistant GM for real estate development. METRO

The details

The deals could be for about $1.7 million per year for the busiest stations.

- The MBTA board of directors would have to approve each contract.
- Each contract would run for eight years.

Pair of Mass. troopers fired for conduct

MASSACHUSETTS. A pair of state police troopers were fired for inappropriate conduct, authorities said yesterday. Adam Paicos was fired after it was revealed he was driving the wrong way down Memorial Drive in Cambridge earlier this year. The two troopers who let him go are under investigation. Paicos was also involved in other conduct unbecoming of a trooper, but state police would not elaborate.

David Lemar was also fired for his connection to spas that were actually houses of prostitution in Southeastern Massachusetts. METRO

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

Forget space camp.

A group of high school students are spending part of their summer at Harvard Medical School learning basic medical practices and training on simulators used by medical interns.

The camp, in its sixth year, is part of the MEDscience summer program and semester high school curriculum.

During the weeklong camp, the teens are taught how to check vital signs, take a patient's medical history and what different medical tests mean.

A simulation is also part of the experience, in which the teens are given a patient dummy and one of their instructors provides the patient's voice through a speaker system.

Yesterday, Mayor Thomas Menino served as the "patient's" husband as he observed the students ask about her medical history, placed an oxygen mask on the dummy and reviewed test images. The program also offers semester courses in high schools in Boston and other nearby cities.

"You could teach blood flow on a chalk board, but they come down here and can see a patient [dummy] having a heart attack and it's closer to real life," said Julie Joyal, the program's lead teacher.

That hands-on experience helped guide some students to pursue a medical degree.

Jamar Jospeh, 18, took part in the summer camp in 2009 and now works as an assistant. He said he is attending Fitchburg State University in the fall with the hope of becoming a dermatologist or orthopedic surgeon.

"I could see it for myself … what goes on behind the curtain," Joseph said. "Before the program I would have been pursuing medicine as a shot in the dark or going in blind."

MICHAEL NAUGHTON
michael.naughton@metro.us

Painful lesson

The mission of the program is to bring the teens closer to real life medical experiences.

With Mayor Thomas Menino there, they got just that.

While the mayor encouraged the group of teens to absorb all they can from the distinguished teachers and to stay in school through college, he also told them about his experience with kidney stones.

Menino told the group how he suffered from his ailment.

"It's one of the most painful things, kids, let me tell you," he said.

Something fishy going on in Hub

BOSTON. Hub chefs competed in a culinary contest yesterday to celebrate the city's availability of day-boat fish.

City officials along with the chefs from four restaurants lauded the availability of day-boat fish in markets across Boston for the first time in 70 years with the "Seafood Throw Down."

Day-boat fish is fish that arrives from the ocean to the market within 36 hours.

Nine Boston Farmers' Markets will feature day-boat fish this year.

The event also celebrated the Boston Bounty Bucks program which, provides farmers' markets with EBT terminals and promotes the use of SNAP benefits by providing a dollar-for-dollar matching incentive for all SNAP purchases up to $10.

South Station to get CVS

BOSTON. Commuter rail riders may soon be able to fill their prescriptions while they wait for their trains.

CVS pharmacy is likely to take over the space occupied by Clarke's bar, according to the Boston Business Journal.

The pharmacy would be two stories, sources told the BBJ.

The lease for Clarke's expires at the end of the year and the bar may relocate within the transit terminal.

Queen shakes hand of former terror leader

PAUL FAITH/AFP/GETTYIMAGES

▶ Britain's Queen Elizabeth II shakes hands with Northern Ireland Deputy First Minister Martin McGuinness, left, watched by First Minister Peter Robinson at the Lyric Theatre in Belfast, Northern Ireland, yesterday.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth shook the hand of former IRA guerrilla commander Martin McGuinness for the first time yesterday, drawing a line under a conflict that cost the lives of thousands of soldiers and civilians, including that of her cousin.

The meeting with McGuinness, who is now the deputy first minister of Northern Ireland, comes 14 years after the Irish Republican Army ended its war against British rule in the province, and is one of the last big milestones in a peace process whose success has been studied around the world.

The queen met McGuinness, Northern Ireland's Unionist first minister Peter Robinson and Irish President Michael D.Higgins for fewer than 10 minutes behind closed doors in a theater in a leafy suburb of Belfast cordoned off by hundreds of police.

McGuinness shook the gloved hand of the queen a second time as she left the theater, this time in front of television cameras — but unlike other guests, he chose not to bow his head.

"Today is a huge event and it is, in a sense, the ultimate handshake."

JOHN REID, BRITISH SECRETARY OF STATE FOR NORTHERN IRELAND FROM 2001 TO 2002, TOLD THE BBC

The queen's bright green outfit appeared to have been chosen with Ireland's national color in mind, and McGuinness wished a smiling monarch well in Irish, saying "slan agus beannacht," which he told her means "goodbye and Godspeed."

There has been scattered opposition to the gesture of reconciliation from dissident Irish militants and from some of the IRA's victims. But the vast majority of the province's politicians backed the meeting, the first between the queen and a top member of the IRA or its former political wing, Sinn Fein.

"Today is a huge event and it is, in a sense, the ultimate handshake," John Reid, British secretary of state for Northern Ireland from 2001 to 2002, told the BBC. REUTERS

Microsoft attack puts spotlight on Greek tensions

ATHENS. Gunmen driving a van packed with gas canisters firebombed the Athens headquarters of Microsoft yesterday, underscoring the threat of instability as Greece asks for more time and less hardship in cutting its crippling debt.

Fire gutted the ground floor of the blue, four-story HQ of the U.S. software giant, blackening its walls with flames, on the eve of yet another European summit seeking a solution to a regional debt crisis first unleashed by Greece.

At least two attackers were involved in the sophisticated assault at 4:45 a.m. in Maroussi, a northern suburb of the sprawling Greek capital, police said.

Brandishing pistols and an automatic rifle, they kept security guards at bay and set fire to the van carrying three gas canisters and five cans of gasoline. No one was hurt in the early morning assault. REUTERS

Russia outraged at US bill

MOSCOW. Moscow expressed outrage yesterday over a U.S. Senate panel's approval of a bill that would penalize Russian officials for human rights abuses and warned Washington that adoption of the sanctions would force Russia to respond in kind.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee passed the "Sergei Magnitsky Rule of Law Accountability Act," named after a Russian anti-corruption lawyer whose death in 2009 while in pretrial detention drew widespread condemnation.

Secretary of State Hillary Clinton downplayed the risk to relations with Moscow.

The bill would deny visas and freeze the assets of Russians suspected of involvement in his death. REUTERS

Google unveils tablet, sets Kindle squarely in its sights

SAN FRANCISCO. Google Inc. took the wraps off its first tablet computer yesterday, looking to replicate its smartphone success in the tablet market despite tough competition.

The Nexus 7 tablet, built by and co-branded with Taiwan's Asus, will begin selling for as low as $199 on the Google Play website and apps store from around mid-July.

At 7 inches and $199, the device takes aim initially at the Kindle model, which analysts consider a window into Amazon.com's trove of online content.

Google can similarly use the Nexus 7 to connect to its own offerings, YouTube and Google Play. REUTERS

Not all of Wall Street 'friending' Facebook

STEPHEN LAM/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Analysts expect Facebook's user base to help it corner a substantial share of the Internet advertising market.

The financial houses behind Silicon Valley's largest-ever coming-out party kicked off formal coverage of the company yesterday by warning about an uncertain business model, margin pressures and a difficult transition to mobile technology.

The reports, released by banks involved in the IPO after a 40-day quiet period expired, represent Wall Street's broadest assessment of the first U.S. company to debut with a market value of more than $100 billion.

Morgan Stanley and other major brokerages that handled the blockbuster IPO said it remained unclear how Facebook plans to make money from a growing number of users logging on to the No. 1 social network via smartphones and tablets. That helped send its shares down 3 percent.

Of the 17 brokerages that handled the blockbuster IPO and kicked off coverage of the social networking company yesterday, eight recommended against buying into the shares. Two of Facebook's three lead underwriters — Goldman Sachs and JP Morgan — were most bullish, targeting Facebook shares at $45 and $42, respectively.

Morgan Stanley, which has come under scrutiny for its role in driving a $38 IPO price that now appears lofty to some, stuck to a price target that matched its debut level and "overweight" recommendation.

The average of target prices cited on Wednesday was $37.64 — a tad below Facebook's stock market debut price. REUTERS

How lofty?

- Banks are required to keep their employees handling IPOs apart from analysts recommending stocks in order to avoid conflicts of interest.
- In the IPO, banks sold their clients shares of eight-year-old Facebook, started by Mark Zuckerberg in his Harvard dorm room, at a price equivalent to a whopping 100 times 2011 net income per share.
- Most analysts expect Facebook's large user base to help it corner a substantial share of the Internet advertising market in the long term.
- The ratings released yesterday were "hold" and its equivalent or lower.

Chicago may decriminalize carrying small amounts of pot

The Chicago City Council yesterday voted to decriminalize possession of small amounts of marijuana, the latest U.S. city to support diminished penalties for the drug's use.

Under the proposal, police officers in the nation's third-largest city would be able to issue a written violation for possession of 15 grams or less rather than make an arrest.

Supporters of the ordinance, including Chicago Mayor Rahm Emanuel, said the measure would help raise revenue for the city, save money and free up police to pursue more serious crimes.

More than a dozen states and several large U.S. cities have already taken similar steps.

Chicago Police Department statistics indicate that last year there were 18,298 arrests for possession of less than 10 grams of marijuana, according to a statement from the mayor's office. Each case involves approximately four officers — two arresting and two transporting officers — and places an additional burden on the Cook County court and jail system, the statement said.

Under the proposal, police officers would be able to issue a written violation for possession of 15 grams or less rather than make an arrest.

The issue of freeing up police officers for more serious crimes is particularly pressing this year in Chicago, which has seen a 37 percent spike in its murder rate.

Other cities with similar policies include Seattle, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. REUTERS

Clemens' ex-trainer to pursue lawsuit

NEW YORK. A trainer who testified that he injected Roger Clemens with performance-enhancing drugs intends to proceed with a defamation lawsuit against the baseball legend despite Clemens' recent acquittal on perjury charges, his lawyer said yesterday after a court hearing in Brooklyn.

Brian McNamee filed the civil lawsuit in 2009, seeking an unspecified amount in monetary damages from Clemens, who he trained with during stints at the Toronto Blue Jays and the New York Yankees. McNamee said his life has been ruined by interviews in which Clemens and his lawyers said he was "off the deep end" and trying to "shake [Clemens] down" with "totally false" statements. REUTERS

NEW YORK. Barely two years after signing on as chief executive with T-Mobile USA, Philipp Humm is leaving the company and will be succeeded on an interim basis by Jim Alling.

T-Mobile USA, owned by German parent Deutsche Telekom, said yesterday that Humm was leaving for personal reasons to spend more time with his family — echoing the statement released in May 2010 when Robert Dotson announced he would be leaving and that Humm would take over. REUTERS

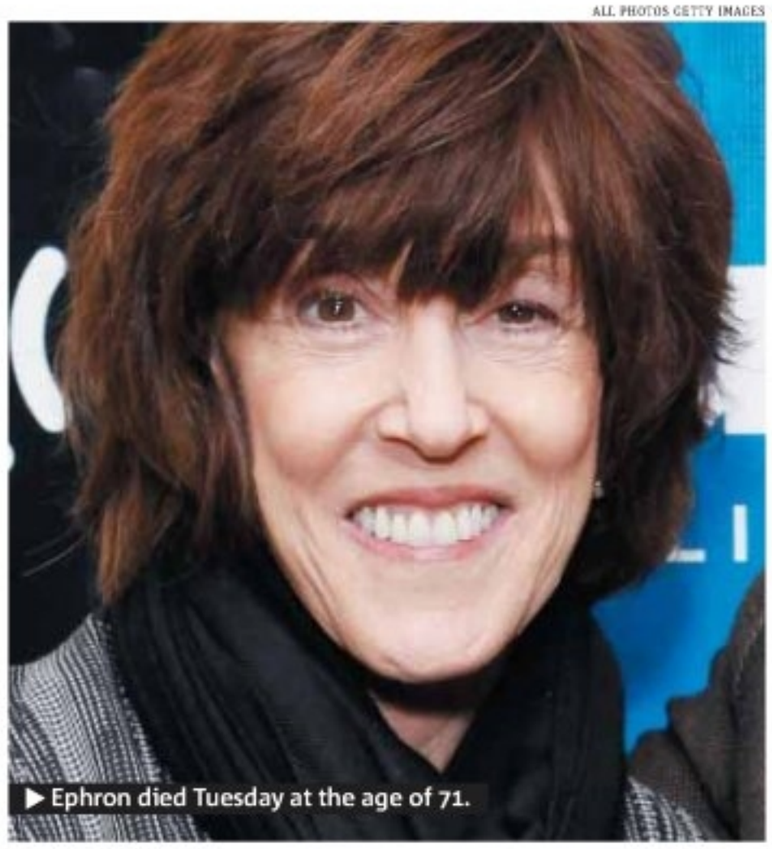
Nora Ephron, remembered

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES



▶ Ephron died Tuesday at the age of 71.

After a long and successful career as a writer and director, Nora Ephron died Tuesday of complications from acute myeloid leukemia. Not surprisingly, the woman behind classics such as "When Harry Met Sally" and "Sleepless in Seattle" is being remembered fondly by her colleagues in Hollywood:

"She was the one you wanted to read, to listen to, to be in the company of. Nora Ephron: Incomparable wit; delightful friend. Sadness reigns."
STEVE MARTIN

"I am very sad to learn of Nora's passing. She was a brilliant writer and humorist. Being her Harry to Meg's Sally will always have a special place in my heart. I was very lucky to get to say her words."
BILLY CRYSTAL

"I was lucky enough to dine with Nora Ephron. She made me laugh so hard I laughed again just thinking about it."
JIMMY KIMMEL

"In a world where we're told that you can't have it all, Nora consistently proved that adage wrong. A writer, director, wife, mother, chef, wit — there didn't seem to be anything she couldn't do. And not just do it, but excel at it, revolutionize it."
CARRIE FISHER

"At a dinner table and on a film set, she lifted us all with wisdom and wit mixed with love for us and love for life. Rita and I are so very sad to lose our friend who brought so much joy to all who were lucky enough to know her."
TOM HANKS

Charlie Sheen, you win this time

Reports that Charlie Sheen expertly, enthusiastically dismantled another Ritz-Carlton hotel room don't seem to be holding up. While UsMagazine.com claims that the actor trashed his suite during a weekend-long party in New York with ex-wife Denise Richards — which he actually famously did do in 2011 — his reps and hotel employees are denying he was anything but a well-behaved guest.

TMZ obtained a copy of the itemized bill — why yes, we did feel creepy reading it — and Sheen's version might hold up: Your mom could do more damage to the mini-bar, and we're pretty sure dry-cleaning isn't a concern when there are coke-dusted porn stars to attend to.

Paula Deen lightening it up

Congratulations are in order for Paula Deen, who appears on the cover of the new People magazine 30 pounds thinner. "It took me a couple of years to get to this point. If you make a few small changes, they can add up to big results," says the chef, who has type 2 diabetes.

Paula, it is better to have loved and lost your buttercake than to have never licked it off the counter at all. Well done.

Depp split getting messy

Johnny Depp recently bought Amber Heard a horse, but he may have been spending some extracurricular time with his former "Rum Diary" co-star before leaving longtime partner Vanessa Paradis. "He's smitten by her. They started sleeping together during the press tour," a source tells Us Weekly. As for Paradis, she wasn't amused — a source heard her scream, "If I see her, I'll drown her!"

Noted, Vanessa. And with that, we are officially done talking about your split. No hard feelings?

Talking points

Katy Perry making label plans

Katy Perry recently let slip her plans to start her own record label, though the announcement might have been a tad early. "I haven't finished it all up, so it's a bit premature, but really I would like to give the opportunity to other people who are frustrated, like what I went through," Perry tells Hollyscoop. "I think there are other people out there that are truly talented that have something to say, and their visions need to be realized and they need to be treated fairly."

Johansson may be paid for nude pics

Scarlett Johansson could be compensated more than $66,000 for having nude photos leaked in 2011, according to the Los Angeles Times. Federal prosecutors suggest in a sentencing memo that Christopher Cheney, who pleaded guilty to nine counts of hacking, compensate some of his high-profile targets, including Johansson. They also suggest $7,500 for Christina Aguilera and $76,767.35 for "Secret Life of the American Teenager" star Renee Olstead. In addition, prosecutors are suggesting a 71-month prison sentence for Cheney.

John Travolta puts on a show

John Travolta made his first public appearance since being hit with sexual misconduct lawsuits from various service industry men, and it appears he decided actions would speak louder than words. Travolta hit the red carpet for the premiere of his latest film, Oliver Stone's "Savages," and instead of stopping to give any interviews, he and wife Kelly Preston put on an impressive show of public displays of affection, groping and kissing each other all the way down the carpet, according to Hollyscoop. The appearance came just hours after a male cruise ship employee filed a federal suit against Travolta.

TV watch list

▶ Louis C.K. stars in "Louie," premiering tonight at 10:30 on FX.

FX

'Louie'

COMEDY. The funniest comedy on television — and in its last two seasons, consistently one of the best series on TV, period — returns as Louie breaks off a relationship. It's an awkward, painful situation for anyone; but in the hands of Louis C.K., the series' writer/director/star, the confrontation also plays out as a poignant life lesson. And, of course, it's hilarious. Season premiere, 10:30 p.m., FX

'Twenty Twelve'

DRAMA. This mockumentary chronicles the work of those organizing the Summer Olympics in London (the team includes "Downton Abbey" star Hugh Bonneville). But their efforts are hardly gold-medal worthy when, in tonight's premiere, they realize their grand Games countdown clock actually counts up. Miniseries premiere, 9 p.m., BBC America ● AMBER RAY

Charlie Sheen as himself

A brief history on the actor's personal antics (and demons) seeping into his film and TV work

In the new FX comedy "Anger Management," Charlie Sheen steps into his first leading role post-"Two and a Half Men" meltdown. He plays a former major league ballplayer whose career was cut short due to his anger issues, leading to his new gig as a therapist specializing in anger management.

"Charlie [Goodson] thrives on chaos," the sitcom's press materials explain of Sheen's character. In the pilot, he sleeps with his therapist/best friend, and nearly beats a guy who gives his teenage daughter bad advice. Loose cannon? Definitely. Sound familiar? Absolutely.

But "Anger Management" is hardly the first role Sheen has taken that mines some of his personal exploits for inspiration. We run down his résumé for autobiographical cues.

‘Pastures of Plenty’

ARLO GUTHRIE

▶ Notice how this photo of the Guthrie family is credited to Arlo Guthrie? Isn’t it funny to think of him (the guy with the long white hair) pressing the self-timer button and running into position?

Born on July 14, 1912, in Oklahoma, Woody Guthrie’s centennial returns the folk icon’s spirit to the spotlight as dozens of concerts, festivals and tributes play out through the summer all over the world. Not surprisingly, Woody’s son, Arlo, his grandchildren and great grandchildren have their own traveling Guthrie Family Reunion tour.

“We’ve only done this once before, and that was years ago,” says Woody’s granddaughter Sarah Lee from her home in the Berkshires, where she grew up. “Seventeen of us on one bus, and my mom and dad on another. It was one big happy family. ... Now we’ve got three generations of us touring around, and then we have Woody’s spirit, so we’ve got four generations.”

How is Woody’s music still relevant after all these years?

“There are so many of his songs that still ring true,” says Sarah Lee. “You can compare a lot of the old Woody Guthrie songs and they apply to what’s going on today. Songs like ‘Pastures of Plenty’ and ‘I Ain’t Got No Home’ — a lot of those old songs are more important in our lives than they’ve ever been.”

Occupy Woodfest

Chances are if Woody Guthrie were a young man right now, he wouldn’t be at the Occupy sit-ins. He’d be leading them.

“He’d be thrilled to know that people have the guts to stand up for what they believe,” says Sarah Lee. “He knew that it was powerful to unite and use your voices. It was never about right or left wing, it was about presenting an unbiased account of the facts and then making up your own mind. I think Woody is out there with them.”

About face

One dating website matches people according to the shapes of their mugs Why it's a time-tested method

It's not quite so strange when you really think about it: How many times have you looked at a couple and remarked that they could be brother and sister? Those strange similarities a couple can share are no coincidence. Genetically, we have been trained to seek out those who have a face similar to our own, says founder of FindYourFacemate.com, Christina Bloom.

"There's part of the brain that's just focused on processing faces. It's the fusiform gyri. It's so important that we have a special area in our brain for it," Bloom says. "If you think about human beings before we had language, or if you think about the way babies are — we learn things visually. That makes sense because that's how we mated. We just know what we like."

Bloom points to several examples of couples who have similar faces — Halle Berry and Olivier Martinez, and Tom Hanks and Rita Wilson, for instance. She believes that matching people by their face shapes will ultimately lead to better chemistry and, hopefully, better coupling.

"After meeting [a date], you think of, 'Wow, it's because of his or her great personality, that's why I like them.' Well no," she says. "You already saw his or her face, and you were interested because of his or her face."

Bloom says that the criteria for a good match comes in this descending order: chemistry, style, values and personality. That's why her website puts looks first and foremost. After uploading a photo, the site's algorithm analyzes 11 points on the face and matches it with others who share those traits. In the next three months, Bloom hopes to improve the algorithm by using 62 points on the face for more specialized matches.

To Bloom, the website is just helping us do what we already intuitively know how to do.

"I've been looking at couples for 20-plus years, and I just think it's innate," she says. "Basically, we're doing it without even knowing that we're doing it. I do not know how people don't see it."

Sisters at war: How to stop the fighting

Twice the advice

KERRY & JACQUELINE DONELLI
LETTERS@METRO.US

CREATAS

▶ Siblings are going to fight, but you need to set some ground rules.

▶ Dear Twins,
My two daughters are always fighting! Last week they fought over who was sitting in the front seat of the car. They pulled each other's hair out! How do I handle all the fighting?

Jacqueline says: It's normal that sisters fight, right Kerry? But try not to intervene, unless there is physical violence. You need some ground rules: Absolutely no hitting, name-calling or tattling. It's important to talk to them separately and when they are calm. Allow them to fully communicate their issue with their sibling and come up with mutual solutions.

Kerry says: Well said, Jack. And take note of what issues or events start a fight. If they are fighting over who walks the dog, then set a chore chart so it's clear whose chore is whose. Be sure that each child has personal space, and don't play favorites!

– Kerry and Jacqueline Donelli are twin sisters and the filmmakers of the comedy, "Titillating Steven." They are pursuing degrees in mental health counseling in NYC.

Suffer a little now, benefit later

RE: "ECONOMY NEEDS MORE ATTENTION": During the housing bubble interest rates were pushed, and kept, too low for too long. This directed labor and resources into the housing market whether it was construction, house flipping, realtors, etc. When the artificial boom turned bust the economy attempted to correct itself by reallocating the misdirected resources from the bubble but our omnipotent benefactors in Washington and the Federal Reserve halted that process by bailing out banks and creating a stimulus bill. What we need is to allow interest rates to return to market levels. Yes, this would mean that we would fall into tougher economic times, for the moment, but we would come out of this mess with a more stable economy. No amount of stimulus can dig us out of recession; it will only sow the seeds for the next bubble to burst.

Obama will want grandma's flowers

RE: "PRESIDENT WANTS YOUR WEDDING GIFTS:" I was surprised to read your paper this morning to note that Obama is trying to collect as much money as he can. This is a new trick and is looking for a cash birthday present. He can go for marriage anniversary cash present, silver anniversary cash present, golden anniversary cash present. Oh I forgot, why not go for funeral cash present also?

Why do these people look for so much money to fight for elections? Can anybody inform the general public so we can know what they do with so much money?

DEVDUTT DAVE, VIA E-MAIL

Do they really know what they're asking?

Anticipating the round of cheers at the possible Supreme Court ruling that key elements of Obamacare (if not the entire law itself) are unconstitutional, consider what such a ruling will mean: private insurance companies can go back to denying coverage to anyone they dislike, raise premiums whenever they want, cut services as they wish, refuse to cover whatever their accountants can dispute, and continue to commit fraud with impunity. If that's the kind of world Obamacare opponents want for us all, I feel truly sorry for them and their families.

JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA E-MAIL

Issa has his own shady past

The Fast and Furious gun running investigation may have been a failure, but there is a curious irony in the related contempt of Congress vote against Attorney General Eric Holder by the Republican-led Oversight and Government Reform Committee.

The chair of that committee, Darrell Issa, has a criminal history of his own. In 1971 he was accused of stealing and abandoning a fellow soldier's car and later, in 1972 he was charged with stealing a Maserati. The case was later dismissed.

Also in 1972, police found him in possession of a concealed weapon. He pleaded to a lesser charge.

The high mindedness of this Republican legislator seems somewhat diminished by his shady past.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Domestic issues should be given priority over all other mundane activities. Once you've met these obligations, go ahead and spend your time however you'd like.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. In matters where you allow your emotions to govern your behavior, you aren't apt to like the results. Conversely, in situations where you logically think things through, all should go well.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If there's something special that you want and have been hoping to find at a good price, do your shopping early.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Situations that you think through thoroughly and can personally control should work out rather well, as long as you haven't overlooked anything. Be sure to check the small details.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. You can be a compassionate person who is ready to be helpful whenever possible. If you get a chance to exercise these fine qualities, keep your good deeds to yourself.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Assess all developments logically, but also give credence to your intuitive insights. These innate perceptions could fill in the blank spots that your practical side misses.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. If you're involved with people who share your work world, it's OK to talk shop. However, it you try to do so with anybody else, you're likely to elicit a big fat yawn.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Activities that offer elements of friendly competition might be extremely appealing to you. The important thing is to engage in such with pals who enjoy the game for its own sake.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If you find yourself in either a mentally or physically competitive situation, don't despair. You have a hefty reserve to draw upon that your opponent lacks.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. When negotiating an important contract, hold firm to your terms and don't jump at the first offer if it isn't to your liking. You'll get what you want if you don't look desperate.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. New knowledge that you've had a difficult time assimilating will be utilized to your advantage when, all of a sudden, the lights go on in your noggin.

It's the Fourth; it's food, friends and family — and fireworks. When it comes to a room with a view of Boston's famous fireworks — and just about everything else in the city — then 52 floors up the Prudential Tower at the Top of the Hub is the place to be.

What four walls of picture windows framing the city, it's easy to miss this Back Bay icon's understated, elegant interior — a retro classic concoction. It's a big fishbowl in the sky; and every Fourth, Top of the Hub throws a party with a cocktail reception, five-course dinner, a live simulcast of the Boston Pops Hatch Shell concert and, weather permitting, spectacular views of the fireworks over the Charles River.

Executive Chef Mark Porcaro's July Fourth 2012 menu is also a celebration of summer. It includes lobster salad with mango, beets and hints of tarragon, plus scallops with grilled watermelon and spicy Habanero. Morel-crusted tenderloin with a summer truffle cognac cream is followed by Cotija cheese with local cherry tomato tostada and then a patriotic red, white and blueberry cheesecake with raspberry mousse.

On the Cape for the Fourth?

Grab a slice of the Centerville Pie Company's Patriotic Pie, or take home a whole pie, cooked or frozen. Baked to resemble the Stars and Stripes, Patriotic Pie is filled with blueberries and cherries. And, like all CPC pies, it's encased in a golden, perfectly flaky crust.

Among the many amazing savory and dessert pies, which are all handmade with no artificial what-nots, chicken and apple are the best-sellers.

But the clam pie is a true seaside treat, and the unbelievably tangy Key lime isn't as sweet as many counterparts. Don't get us started on the cream pies ... hello, hello American yummy pie!

Songza playlist

Songza summers past

Yes, "Call Me Maybe" is definitely the song of the summer, and be sure to pick up Metro tomorrow for our interview with Carly Rae Jepsen. But if you're yearning for summers past, then you will dig the playlist that you find this week at www.metro.us/songza and www.songza.com/listen/a-bad-ass-summer-in-1990s-Metro-2. It's a playlist full of edgier summer hits from 1990 through 1999. Alt-rock and rap were king, and your older brother was rocking out (on devices that weren't iPods) to tracks like Harvey Danger's "Flagpole Sitta" and "Ghetto Superstar" by Pras (featuring Ol' Dirty Bastard and Mya, who is pictured here).

— Songza is a streaming platform that mines years of music history and today's music blogs for the best gems, so you don't have to. The company, which calls itself a music concierge service, offers thousands of expertly curated playlists for free on the Web, iPhone and iPad. Each week Metro teams up with Songza to bring you fun new playlists as you enter into the weekend.

Live Performance? 'Uhh Yeah Dude'

- Comedy podcast comes to the East Coast after more than 300 episodes
- Co-founder Seth Romatelli is returning home for his first time in four years
- Will he find what he lost at The Paradise?

Seth Romatelli claims to have only ever lost three things in his life: A Red Sox hat at the 1994 Lollapalooza, an umbrella at Grauman's Chinese Theatre in Hollywood at the opening of "The Perfect Storm," and a cassette of a live Guns n' Roses show at the Paradise Rock Club in October of 1987.

This July, Romatelli, a native of Haverhill, will return to The Paradise, but he's not necessarily looking for that Gn'R tape. He and his podcast co-host Jonathan Larroquette — son of John Larroquette of the 1980s show "Night Court" — will be back in Boston next week to do their own live performance of their podcast, "Uhh Yeah Dude."

Described as "a weekly roundup of America through the eyes of two American-Americans," "Uhh Yeah Dude" began in 2006 when the pair teamed up at the early stages of podcast popularity.

"We used to have telephone conversations where we'd crack each other up if we hadn't seen each other in a while," says Romatelli of Larroquette. "He thought if we gave this a structure … we could kind of capture that same thing but in the format of a radio show."

TALISA CHANG

Quoted

"We're going to try to make sense and process all of the information … Like how is 'Rock of Ages' a movie? Why are they raising prices at Starbucks?" ROMATELLI

Romatelli claims not to own a cell phone or have an e-mail account, so how does such a self-professed Luddite actively do a podcast each week? He says when it comes to technology, Larroquette does all of the heavy lifting.

"He came to my house and said, 'I'm gonna put a laptop on your coffee table in the middle of your living room, and I'm gonna plug in a microphone on both ends. I'm gonna sit in a chair, and you're gonna stand across from me to talk for an hour,'" remembers Romatelli.

Romatelli says very little is planned in advance with "Uhh Yeah Dude."

"It's a hodgepodge in the way that we might talk about a commercial that we saw, but then we might talk about a new food product, but then we might talk about a crazy news story," he says. "We're going to try to make sense and process all of the information … like 'How is "Rock of Ages" a movie?' and 'why are they raising prices at Starbucks?'"

The "Uhh Yeah" dudes and their fans have taken six-and-a-half years worth of episodes and categorized them by topic on uhhyeahdude.com, where archives are continually updated. If he's ever wondering "what was going on in America the second week in February in 2008?" Romatelli says, he can go back to the show and see what they discussed.

The July show will be their seventh live one since the podcast's debut. They plan on keeping the conversational format of the podcasts. With their L.A. shows, the two simply brought furniture from Romatelli's living room and set it on the stage.

At the end of each episode, the pair bump fists and say "seatbelts."

"I don't even know what episode we started," he says. "It doesn't even mean anything, just something I'd say to people as a weird thing to say."

So, seatbelts!

'Uhh' in the Hub

Uhh Yeah Dude has done live shows in L.A., Seattle and Brooklyn. When they were offered a show in New York City, Seth Romatelli asked to move it to Boston.

"I haven't been back to Massachusetts in four years and I want to see mom and dad," he says.

Romatelli, a graduate of Emerson College, moved to L.A. in the months after his graduation in 1995. When he speaks of coming home, he uses a variety of synonyms for mental illness: "To get to go back and get to do a show in Boston is crazy. Just to be back in Massachusetts is nuts. Just to be back in my hometown would be crazy. To be doing a show there with my homie would be insane!"

Van Der Graff Generator's brainy, high-concept work set them apart even in the brainy, high-concept world of early '70s prog-rock. Innovators among the innovative, they were the first prog act to produce a side-length epic, and their influence extended beyond the genre. Compare early '70s David Bowie to Graff singer Peter Hammill — perhaps Ziggy Stardust wasn't really from space after all?

This New Jersey band's two-hour 2006 opus "The Mother, the Mechanic, and the Path" had a narrative and stylistic scope unheard of even in the overwrought world of early '00s emo. They gave their fans six years to digest it before this summer's follow-up, "In Currents," a collection of 12 songs which should be considerably more manageable.

Health & Wellness:

New Aloe "Cocktail" Solves Digestion Nightmares for Millions

Doctors report new aloe-vera "cocktail" delivers instant relief to people who suffer with heartburn, acid-indigestion, constipation, gas, bloating, diarrhea, and other stomach nightmares...

By Damian Wexler, Freelance health reporter

"Sometimes you'll give anything just to make it stop!"... says Dr. Santiago Rodriguez about digestive distress. He ought to know. After all, he's a world-renowned expert on medicinal botany.

"You can see the tortured look on people's faces as they talk about the scorching burn of stomach acid. Or being so constipated you almost pass out from the pain." And there's nothing worse than being "kept prisoner to your bathroom" because of chronic diarrhea.

It's a nightmare for people who suffer from it. But now, your stomach problems could be over. And the secret is in the healing aloe plant.

Dr. Santiago Rodriguez, Ph.D., world-famous research chemist

FINALLY THERE'S HOPE..

At first, the thought of drinking Aloe vera might make some people back away. But in fact, this delicious "digestion cocktail" is doing amazing things for people who suffer with stomach problems --- even if they've had them for years. Here's how it works...

Is it Worth the Risk?
FDA WARNING!
Using proton pump inhibitors (like Nexium® and Prilosec®) on a long-term basis, increases your risk of hip, bone and spinal fractures.

STOMACH AGONY

Your stomach naturally produces acid so strong, it can dissolve an aluminum spoon in just 30 minutes! And when excess acid escapes into your esophagus, throat and stomach lining... It unleashes the scorching pain of acid reflux, heartburn, ulcers and more misery. Add the problems of stress, and "all hell breaks loose."

Dr. Rodriguez explains... the "AloeCure® can work genuine miracles. It buffers high acid levels with amazing speed. So your stomach feels completely at ease just moments after drinking it." In fact, it could wipe out stomach pain, discomfort, and frantic runs to the bathroom.

UNTIL NOW, LITTLE COULD BE DONE...

But "AloeCure® can help virtually anyone. Even people with chronic stomach pain can feel better right away," says Dr. Rodriguez. And what's really exciting is AloeCure® aids in keeping your digestive tract healthy, so intestinal distress stops coming back.

DIGESTION DEFENDER #1: BALANCES STOMACH ACID

Your first line of defense is calcium malate. This natural acid buffer instantly sends stomach acid levels plunging. And holds acid levels down so they don't return!

DIGESTION DEFENDER #2: INSTANT, SOOTHING RELIEF

AloeCure® is brimming with polysaccharides, this "wonder" compound that gently coats the throat, esophagus and stomach, carrying instant relief to cells scorched by excess acid.

HERE'S WHAT DOCTORS ARE SAYING!

AloeCure® is backed by important scientific studies that confirm... aloe calms stomach acid and allows your body to heal itself.

Dr. Liza Leal, M.D. says, "That's why I recommend it to patients who suffer from heartburn, acid reflux, ulcers, and irritable bowel syndrome.."

Dr. Santiago Rodriguez agrees. "Just two ounces of AloeCure® reduces the acids in your stomach by ten times."

Francisco DeWeever, a Certified Nutritional Microscopist, "My patients report their IBS, Crohn's-Colitis, Constipation, Acid Reflux and a host of other digestive problems have all but disappeared."

USERS ARE THRILLED!

"All the problems I had with my stomach are gone. Completely gone."
-Phillip Brown; Machinist

"AloeCure helped with my bloating, my digestion, even my sleep. I can really see a big difference." -Florence Vazquez, Caregiver

"I can eat what I want and not worry about sitting up all night with heartburn because of it." -Jaime Leigh, Teacher

SAFE AND EASY TO USE

Unlike harsh chemical antacids and prescription drugs, AloeCure® is safe, all-natural and has absolutely no side effects. It's tasty, drug-free, and simple to use. Just drink two ounces, once in the morning, and once at night, and start enjoying immediate life-changing relief!

SPECIAL OPPORTUNITY FOR OUR READERS!

TRY AloeCure® 100% RISK FREE. For a limited time AloeCure® is offering a FREE one month supply ($90 value) with every order and two FREE bonus gifts; A 4oz. tube of AloeCure® Pure Aloe Gel, great for burns, cuts, rashes and more ($10 value) PLUS the book "Aloe Vera A Key To Good Health" ($10 value) that explains the other incredible health benefits of Aloe Vera! 10 Reasons to hit the movies this weekend

UNIVERSAL PICTURES/ELOUBA

▶ Just another day for Ted and John, walking around town.

2 'People Like Us' Alex Kurtzman and Roberto Orci, the phenomenal pair of writers responsible for the screenplay of "Star Trek" and the TV show "Fringe," team up again for this movie about a salesman who discovers his long-lost sister. The movie features an all-star cast with the likes of Chris Pine, Elizabeth Banks, Olivia Wilde and Michelle Pfeiffer.

3 'Madea's Witness Protection' Madea's crazy life continues — first she had a family reunion, then she went to jail and now she's a part of a witness protection program. Madea must help the family of a Wall Street investment banker, played by Eugene Levy, who's been accused of creating a Ponzi scheme.

4 'Magic Mike' Sex sells and so does Channing Tatum in "Magic Mike," a movie inspired by the actor's life as an exotic dancer prior to the film business. In this Steven Soderbergh film, he's an expert stripper who takes a young man under his wing as his protege (Alex Pettyfer) — while simultaneously aspiring to become a small businessman.

5 'Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter' You thought you knew the history of America's 16th president — but never like this. From the New York Times best-selling author of "Pride and Prejudice and Zombies," this film brings every history student's nightmare to life. Watch as Abraham Lincoln fights to protect his country from blood-sucking demons.

Must-see

'Ted'

1 We've all imagined that our favorite stuffed animal, action figure, or doll was real — for John Bennett (Mark Wahlberg), though, it's his daily reality. Writer, director and "Family Guy" creator Seth McFarlane voices Ted, a rude, crude teddy bear who refuses to leave John's side. Ever.

6 'Brave' Mix the heroism of an arrow-shooting princess, the vibrancy of a 3-D computer-animated film and the creativity of Pixar, and what do you get? You get "Brave" — a movie featuring the studio's first female protagonist. Traditionally, a group of men must compete in an archery contest for the attention of the princess; however, Princess Merida, with the accuracy of a hawk and the tenacity of a war hero, has other plans.

7 'Seeking a Friend for the End of the World' If an asteroid were hurdling towards the planet, what would your last earthly mission be? Steve Carell humorously explores all possibilities, from wild sexual exploits to daily Casual Fridays at work.

8 'Rock of Ages' Based on the play of the same name, director Adam Shankman ("Hairspray") once again brings Broadway to Hollywood. You need to see Tom Cruise play a mystical rock god.

9 'That's My Boy' Adam Sandler resumes his crude antics as Donny, a party animal manchild who fathered Todd (Andy Samberg) while a teenager. Donny abruptly re-enters his now-successful son's life in an attempt to secure money he owes to the IRS.

10 'Prometheus' Reviews might've been mixed, but Metro highly recommends this 3-D epic. Ridley Scott returns to the franchise he started with the 1979 classic film "Alien," but this film may or not be a prequel.

GETTING INTO THE SPIRITS

West Bridge puts a cocktail-savvy spin on all of the new bars in Kendall Square

The opening of a number of promising new bar-centric bars around the city has given way to a regression of sorts in recent months, trending toward more style over substance. That's why the opening of West Bridge in Kendall Square is so heartening for the cocktail and spirits-focused drinker.

You won't be surprised to hear that the bar program at the inventive French restaurant is helmed by longtime Eastern Standard vet Josh Taylor, who has concocted an impressively assertive cocktail lineup. He focuses on rhum agricole (made from cane juice, not molasses), mezcal, brandy and sherry bases. One example, the deeply contemplative Wheelwright, is made with fino (the driest variety of sherry), Wray and Nephew overproof rum, Dolin Blanc vermouth, Galliano and orange water. It changes from one sip to the next, from deep, bitter chocolate from the sherry, to almost dessert-like notes from the vanilla of the Galliano. It's a cocktail, like a few of the others here, worth talking about as you drink it, which is something I haven't been able to say in a while. So too is the Foreign Legion, made with rhum agricole, Dubonnet Rouge and Green Chartreuse. The interplay of the vermouth and the chartreuse adds up to a dark raisin profile somehow.

I praised Taylor for sticking to his cocktail guns when rolling out the menu. Have guests been challenged by it?

"I'm used to working with a lot of this stuff and explaining it to people," he says, referring to the trend-setting Eastern Standard bar program. "So although things like Becherovka and Campari can be out there for some people, it's really not that complicated. The general idea was, 'Let's make things that are approachable and fun for people that might not be expecting to walk into the place and get that sort of drink.' Obviously with cocktails you can go a million different ways, but we're trying to push things out there. Straight spirit whiskey drinks can be a tough sell, but we're trying to be a little bit lighter and little more fun."

Even more fun:

Among the more fun recipes is the Conant's Island, made with a house-infused cucumber vodka, rice vinegar and green tabasco, which combine for a lightly heated vegetal punch, or King Carnival, Taylor's current favorite, made with Rhum Clement, St. Germain, Dry Curacao, lime and bitters. "In the whole process of picking spirits, I got enamored with the rums that come out of Martinique, rhum agricole — particularly the Clement House is really good, really different stuff. It sort of blew my mind to have something in this style that was as smooth as it was."

He calls the King Carnival nice and light, in the daiquiri family for summer, and feminine and masculine at the same time.

Lyricstage.com
Here's your last chance to catch Lyric Stage's popular run of this unusual 2003 musical. Its employment of "Sesame Street"-like puppets as characters in an adult-oriented coming-of-age tale gets the most attention, but its true focus is the disillusionment of a whole generation raised on the simplistic notions of the "self-esteem" movement, closely associated with that beloved children's program.

Boston Metro Opera presents this work by Christopher Cerrone, based on Italo Calvino's eponymous novella. Kublai Khan summons Marco Polo to court to describe the cities of his empire, and perhaps explain why the empire is falling apart. The very idea of a city is central here, explored not just as a place but a state of mind. Also, Boston Metro Opera is not affiliated with Metro Boston Newspaper, but maybe we should ask if they'd let us sing a cantata or two.

We were secretly hoping this event was related to "He-Man," but its real subject is actually much more epic. It includes a gallery talk in the new Josiah McElheny exhibition on the approaches of artists and scientists to imagining the universe's origins, then an old-school "film strip" on the subject and, finally, some live stargazing on the waterfront.

Columbia's Musik, a group dedicated to reproducing early American music, presents a show about early America's most mythic figure, the cherry tree-hating George Washington. Through a mix of war tunes, presidential marches, contemporary chamber music, some of his favorite dance tunes and laments for his death, the audience gets a unique view of Washington and the period of America's nativity.

With all the brassy, bombastic Fourth of July stuff out there, we thought we'd point to something more intimate: this four-hand piano concert by Linda Papatopoli and Bert Yocum. Four hands for the Fourth — get it? For those whose only knowledge of four-hand piano is "Heart and Soul," this should be an eye-opener — or is "ear-opener" more appropriate?

This is the original 1954 film, father to an entire genre of campy monster-destroying-city tales. It's so legendary now that it's easy to forget its grounding in the real anxieties of the post-WWII era. The great lizard is a walking, sky-scraper-demolishing metaphor for the unpredictable dangers of the atomic age in which we still live. Make no mistake: Godzilla is real!

This exhibition places itself at the crossroads of two disciplines, both of which were born in the mid-19th century. Anthropologists flocked to photography as a research tool almost immediately, and it's been indispensable ever since. Each picture here has multiple dimensions — there's the person depicted, but also the era, the anthropological purpose and the technology itself. A picture is worth a thousand words indeed!

This comedian of Puerto Rican descent welcomes both Latinos and those he calls the "Latino-curious" to his shows. Some of his best material explores the linguistic curiosity that is Spanglish, which he describes as "twice the vocabulary, half the grammar." Another bit finds him commending the transition from "Hispanic" to "Latino," partly because the latter term rhymes with better words, like "cappuccino."

No timetable on Garnett

Celtics president of basketball operations Danny Ainge said yesterday that there is no deadline for Kevin Garnett on his decision to return to the Celtics or retire.

"We're having conversations with Kevin but we don't have any answers on whether he's coming back or not," Ainge said. "The sooner we can get Kevin done the better it will be for us."

Metro's NBA Mock Draft | Round 1 (7 p.m., ESPN)

4 — CAVALIERS (21-45)
PF Thomas Robinson (Kansas) — The Cavs will be thrilled Robinson fell to them, as the 6-foot-9 forward physically dominated opponents last year and is relentless around the rim.

5 — KINGS (22-44)
SF Michael Kidd-Gilchrest (UK) — The 6-foot-7 Kidd-Gilchrist is extremely athletic and can guard multiple positions from bigger lead guards to smallish power forwards.

6 — BLAZERS (28-38)
PF Andre Drummond (UConn) — There isn't a bigger boom-or-bust player in the draft, but Drummond's ceiling has been compared to Knicks forward Amar'e Stoudemire.

7 — WARRIORS (23-43)
SG Dion Waiters ('Cuse) — The Warriors need to get bigger in the backcourt and this solid combo-guard possesses great athleticism. The 6-foot-4 Waiters can play off the ball.

8 — RAPTORS (23-43)
PG Austin Rivers (Duke) — This may be a little high for many people's liking, but Rivers possesses the skill-set that general manager Bryan Colangelo covets.

9 — PISTONS (25-41)
PF John Henson (UNC) — Although limited offensively, the extremely long Henson (6-foot-11) would finally give the Pistons a legit shot-blocking presence in the middle.

10 — HORNETS (21-45)
PG Kendall Marshall (UNC) — Arguably the best "pure" point guard in the draft, Marshall would fill a void that was left behind following the Chris Paul trade.

11 — BLAZERS (28-38)
PG Damian Lillard (Weber St.) — He's considered 1b after Marshall for best lead guard, as he's a prolific scorer with a good jumper. The 6-foot-3 Lillard is an aggressive playmaker.

12 — ROCKETS (34-32)
C Meyers Leonard (Illinois) — He's arguably the safest bet at a long career of all the bigs in the draft, as the long and athletic Leonard would finally be a replacement for Yao.

13 — SUNS (33-33)
SG Jeremy Lamb (UConn) — Lamb is an explosive athlete with a crazy wingspan. He has great range out to the 3-point line and an explosive first step, but needs to bulk up.

14 — BUCKS (31-35)
C Tyler Zeller (UNC) — Acquired from Houston, he's a smart player with a great low-post presence and feel for the game. He'll help replace Andrew Bogut, who was traded last year.

15 — SIXERS (35-31)
PF Terrence Jones (UK) — Jones is an all-around player with decent range and prototypical size (6-foot-9, 252 pounds). His size affords him to defend multiple post positions.

16 — ROCKETS (34-32)
SF Terrence Ross (Minnesota) — At 6-foot-7, he's big enough to play either wing position. He has solid shooting form with a great first step and will offset the Chase Budinger trade.

17 — MAVERICKS (36-30)
SF Perry Jones III (Baylor) — He could be what Lamar Odom wasn't for the Mavs last season, as the 6-foot-11 Jones has the ability to play multiple forward spots.

18 — ROCKETS (34-32)
PF Jared Sullinger (Ohio St.) — Yes, there are red flags about his back, but according to Sullinger's camp — and his former coach Thad Matta — he's fine and will be durable.

19 — MAGIC (37-29)
SG Moe Harkless (St. John's) — He has great length and athleticism, at 6-foot-8, 207 pounds. Harkless also has solid footwork as a face-up offensive player and quickness as well.

20 — NUGGETS (38-28)
SG Evan Fournier (France) — Perhaps the only foreign-born player to be drafted in the first round, Fournier is a sneaky scorer in the mold of childhood hero Manu Ginobili.

21 — CELTICS (39-27)
SF Royce White (Iowa St.) — A versatile attack-the-rim forward who is big and physical (6-foot-8, 270 pounds). He does have mental concerns though, like a fear of flying.

22 — CELTICS (39-27)
C Fab Melo ('Cuse) — A true 7-foot center with prototypical length and size (7-foot-1, 260 pounds). He's still raw offensively, but is a supreme shot-blocker and rebounder.

23 — HAWKS (40-26)
SF Jeff Taylor (Vanderbilt) — He's a solid athlete with NBA size (6-foot-7, 215 pounds) and ability. Taylor is an instinctive defender and solid scorer from all over the floor.

24 — CAVALIERS (21-45)
C Arnett Moultrie (Miss. St.) — He's a smooth power forward/center with solid size and length (6-foot-11, 240 pounds), who will fill out into a nice post presence.

25 — GRIZZLIES (41-25)
PG Marquis Teague (UK) — Amazingly fast with a great first step, but some say almost too fast for his own good as he plays out of control at times.

HORNETS (21-45)
PF Anthony Davis (UK) — This is obviously a no-brainer, as Davis wrested control of the consensus No. 1 pick by midway through his freshman season. The Hornets won the jackpot — no conspiracy theories here — and will add the best defensive player to come out of college in a long time.

2 — BOBCATS (7-59)
SF Harrison Barnes (UNC) — Makes sense on two levels, as the explosive Barnes has been personally scouted by UNC alum Michael Jordan and fills a scoring need.

3 — WIZARDS (20-46)
SG Brad Beal (Florida) — Beal may be the purest scorer in the draft. The 6-foot-4 Beal has been compared favorably to Ray Allen for his ability to shoot from anywhere.

Dicey zone

Here's where things start getting dicey for the late round teams. There should be slim pickin's here:

- Memphis' Will Barton to Indiana at 26
- Vanderbilt's Festus Ezeli to the defending champion Heat at 27
- Baylor's Quincy Miller to OKC at 28
- Kentucky's Doron Lamb to Chicago at 29
- Washington's Tony Wroten to Golden State to round out the first round.

Red Sox bats all set for West swing

Boston has ripped off nine wins in its last 11 games ◗ Bats come alive in final game at Fenway before West Coast swing ◗ Lester solid in win

The Red Sox (40-35) wasted little time giving Jon Lester a cushion yesterday, ripping off six runs in the first inning and ultimately earning an easy 10-4 victory at Fenway Park.

Toronto's Ricky Romero lasted just three innings while giving up eight earned runs on seven hits.

Dustin Pedroia got things rolling for Boston with an RBI double and Adrian Gonzalez, Will Middlebrooks, Mike Aviles and Darnell McDonald also drove in runs in the Sox's hot start.

Lester improved to 5-5 on the year, working seven innings while allowing four earned runs on seven hits. He struck out four and did not walk a batter.

JIM ROGASH/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Darnell McDonald makes a catch against the wall.

The Red Sox now begin a West Coast swing, starting tonight in Seattle (10:10, NESN) when Franklin Morales faces Felix Hernandez.

In somewhat surprising news, Sox manager Bobby Valentine suggested that pitcher John Lackey could start pitching before the end of 2012. Lackey is recovering from Tommy John surgery.
